

Bluestone redefines Conferencing with its new “Smart Conference” Service.

Highlights

- Bluestone introduces “Smart Conferencing”, the bridge that calls you.
- No need to remember “dial-in” phone numbers, pin codes or even the time the conference is scheduled.
- Miss the call? No problem just return the call and the service will automatically connect you to your conference.

Optionally use the web interface to see who is on the call and share documents.

Advanced account management aimed at the corporate not individual user. Add users, change privileges, access call logs, conference records and billing.

Integrated Skype access

Super Easy to Use

There are two modes of operation:

- Scheduled Auto-Conference
 - Use the web interface to book a conference - setup the people to be called and the time.
 - When the conference becomes active it will call everyone and automatically introduce them into the conference.
 - One or more people miss the call - no problem. They simply return the call and then they will be instantly be added to the conference. No pin numbers or other complexities to deal with.

- You can even make this a recurring event if you want – to stay on top of a critical problem and make sure everyone is there on time.

■ Quick Auto-Conference

- Define lists of people that you might want to contact quickly. Could be your sales team, teachers at a school, IT staff ... any list of up to 30 people. Say my sales team is “list1”, management team “list2” etc.
- When you need to contact them call into the bridge and you will be prompted for the list number. Enter this list number and instantly the bridge will call everyone on your list.
- If you have web access you can see who is on the call (even from an iPhone) and if necessary share documents with your team.

Additional Conferencing Features

- Web based access to conference booking, conference control, history logs and conference recordings.
- Easy to configure automatic roll call – see exactly who is on the conference, when they joined and when they left.
- On line conference control. Mute, change volume, eject any member of the conference. See who is talking in real time.
- On line document sharing – upload documents ahead of time and leave them there for whenever you need them. Sharing these documents with others on the conference is simple and requires no software downloads – just use a regular browser.

Accounts on the system are structured by organization rather than by individual, as they are with many services. Administrators of the account are free to add and delete users as needed, assign privileges and so on, making it much more convenient to administer. Administer a single account for your company, rather than one for each individual.
